GERMANS CLAIM CAPTURE OF VERDUN AND WIDE BREAK IN MAGINOT LINE

ROME REPORTS FRENCH NAVAL ATTACK FAILS

Cruisers, Destroyers Driven Away After One Sinks, Dispatch States.

By The Associated Press

ROME, June 15 — An Italian [illegible] boat and the coastal batteries of Genoa were reported today to have driven off a French naval squadron which bombarded the Ligurian Riviera at dawn on Thursday. One French destroyer was reported torpedoed and sunk and another damaged. A Rome radio said today that three persons were killed and 12 injured in the Genoa engagement and that six persons were killed and 25 wounded in an air raid on Savona at an undisclosed time. Savona is near Genoa on the coast.

Rome authorities also said airplanes flew over Rome early yesterday and dropped leaflets indicating the planes were French. The leaflets called on the Italians to quit the war. One woman was killed by anti-aircraft fire directed at the plane.

A belated account of the Genoa battle was given today by Steafni, official Italian news agency.

The Steafni account said the French naval [illegible] turned around and steamed out to sea when coast batteries opened fire in support of the torpedo boat.

Destroyers Open Fire

The news agency said the torpedoboat, described as the 17-year-old Calatafimi, 967 tons, attacked four French destroyers of the Tartu type, which were followed by five cruisers.

When the destroyers, creeping toward the Genoa coast in the hazy semi-darkness, opened fire on the Calatafimi, the latter returned the fire and launched two torpedoes at a distance of a mile and three quarters.

The agency story said one Salvo struck a destroyer, which was seen to be covered with smoke. The remainder of the enemy ships then fled under the fire of the coast batteries.

The torpedoed ship sank, it was reported. Stefani described it as a 2441-ton vessel with a crew of 10 officers and 210 men.

At the same time, the Italian high command reported the occupation of "some localities" in France along the Alpine frontier by Italian troops who overcame "enemy attempts to hinder our action." Some prisoners were reported captured.

In the air, the high command said bombers attacking in waves scored direct hits on the British naval and naval base at Aden, near Italian East Africa, while other Italian bombers successfully assaulted the military works of Malta, British Mediterranean base.

The command also said an enemy submarine was sunk by Italian sea planes.

Action In Alpine Area

"On the Alpine front," a communique said, "a previously arranged plan has been perfected with the occupation of some localities beyond the border. Enemy attempts to hinder our action failed and some prisoners were captured.

"Italian aircraft, in spite of bad atmospheric conditions carried out a fresh and effective bombing of military objectives in Malta and made a number of reconnaissances of enemy bases.

"In Italian North Africa, the enemy renewed its attacks with numerous armored elements

NAZIS CLAIM MAGINOT GAINS

Berlin Declares Heavy Assault Penetrates French Line of Fortifications.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, June 15—Penetration of German troops into fortifications of the Maginot line in a heavy onslaught was reported today by the high command.

Nazi air forces bombarded the main French bulwark on the western front in a big attack in the Saar region, its communique reported.

The onslaught on the French fortified line was simultaneous with the deep thrusts of German forces through northern France which, a spokesman said, has brought what remains of France's armies to the edge of collapse.

Count 200,000 Prisoners

The high command said that more than 200,000 prisoners had been counted in the past 10 days and that the amount of booty was inestimable.

Progressing to what the German leaders predicted would be quick dissolution and destruction of the French army, Nazi, forces have thrown the French back southeast of the Argonne forest and blocked their lines of retreat, the communique said.

It indicated a heavy role for the German air force, reporting effective attacks on the Verdun sector and in the regions of Metz and Belfort, important zones along the Maginot line.

Troops concentrations and columns of marching troops were bombed it said, and numerous railroad trains destroyed.

"Yesterday," the communique announced, "Paris was occupied without fighting and passed through.

Nazi Flag Over Versailles

"The reich's war flag is waving over the palace of Versailles where in 1871 the German destiny was established and in 1919 the German shame sealed."

"The French are fleeing wildly," a spokesman declared, before the German war machine, which was described as rolling relentlessly southward from Paris, allowing the enemy no breathing spell.

The Maginot line, bulwark of France's defense system, also is doomed, said the spokesman.

"Big things are doing in the Saar sector," he declared ominously, and commentators predicted that "the Maginot line soon will be past history."

ROAD CONTRACT LET

The Mansfield Asphalt Paving Co. of Mansfield, today was let a contract by the state highway department for concrete paving of 1.4 miles of the Mansfield-Crestline road in Mansfield, a WPA project, on its bid of $67,857, The Associated Press reported. The estimate was $78,850.

Last Short Ship Races Postponed Until Tonight

Rain caused postponement of last night's program of Short Ship harness races. The complete card will be presented tonight with post time changed to 8:30.

Showers yesterday afternoon flooded the track and made it impossible to hold the races. The postponement was the first incident to mar the four-night meeting here, which has been one of the most successful in the history of the circuit.

Purses totaling $1,300 are offered in the three races tonight. Nine dashes are carded and 22 horses have been entered. Eight each will go to the post in the 2:16 trot and classified pace, with six named for the three-year-old trot.

A trio of Hambletonian candidates are in the field of three-year-olds. They are Danville Anna (Parshall), Pronto Hanover (Dennison) and Remus Short). Remus is one of the largest harness horses now in training.

Russians Reported Building Air Base Off Alaska Coast

By The Associated Press

NOME, Alaska, June 15—Russians were reported building an air field and wireless station today on bleak Big Diomede island, four miles from Little Diomede island on the American side of the International boundary.

The Nome Daily Nugget quoted a reliable source as saying a crew of 25 Russians and several Russian Eskimo families were hard at work constructing the air field.

There were conflicting reports that Russia was settling thousands of persons on the island, which is only 25 miles west of the Alaskan mainland and 150 miles northwest of Nome.

The Nugget said there was no basis to the report, but in Washington, D. C., yesterday Territorial Congressional Delegate Anthony Dimond said he had been informed Russia was colonizing the island in a big way.

The newspaper said it was informed that the wireless station would be used for year-round weather report broadcasts and pointed out that, while one or two families usually occupy Big Diomede in the winter, a small band of natives [illegible] from nearby [illegible] on the island [illegible]

Troops March In After Nation Capitulates to Demands from Moscow.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, June 15—Sweeping ultimatums from Soviet Russia, including the ouster of the existing Lithuanian government and "free passage" into that country of Soviet troops, were accepted today by Lithuania, it was officially announced here.

Lithuania was declared to have given in one hour ahead of the deadline set by Moscow.

(Berlin dispatches reported that Red army troops started marching into the little country this afternoon.)

An official communique distributed by Tass, the Russian news agency, accused the Lithuanian government of having prepared to attack the Soviet garrison stationed in that country, of having "rudely violated" its mutual assistance pact with Russia and of having entered with Latvia and Estonia into a "military alliance directed against the Soviet Union."

The communique said that Juozas Urbsys, Lithuanian foreign minister who has been in Moscow for several days, gave the consent of the Lithuanian government to three Soviet demands:

1. That the Lithuanian minister of internal affairs and the head of the political police department be tried as those directly guilty of provocative actions against Soviet garrisons in Lithuania.

2. That Lithuania form immediately a new government which would be capable and ready to realize honestly the Soviet - Lithuanian mutual aid pact agreed upon last fall and to hold in leash the enemies of this pact.

3. That Lithuania guarantee fully the free passage to Lithuanian territory of Soviet troops in numbers sufficient to realize the pact.

Republicans Now Free To Start Work of Drafting Platform Anti-War Plank

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 15 — Completion of the roster of Republican national convention delegates left party leaders free today to ponder one of the thorniest of convention problems — the drafting of an anti-war plank that will stand the test of events and public opinion.

STOCKS MAKE ANOTHER GAIN

Steels Lead Market Advance on Strength of Domestic Business Trends.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 15—Steels led the stock market on a further advance today as domestic business developments took the edge off depressing war dispatches.

Gains ranged from fractions to more than 3 points after a slow opening. The pace quickened for a while on the forward push, then slowed. At the beginning of the final hour top marks were reduced in most cases.

Prices were erratic throughout, jumping backward and forward as much as a point on single sales.

Later profit taking was attributed to the desire of many traders to lighten commitments in preparation for foreign events over the week-end which might drastically switch the trend. The plight of France aroused fresh fears in Wall Street that an enforced peace might be in the offing.

Upward share movers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, American Smelting, American Telephone, Loft, Sears Roebuck, Great Northern and American Car & Foundry.

Bonds improved and commodities were mixed. "Free" sterling slipped in terms of the dollar.

Market encouragement was found in the federal reserve summary disclosing the country's department store sales for the week ending June 8 were 14 per cent ahead of the corresponding 1939 period. This compared with a year-to-year decline of 9 per cent in the preceeding week.

Districts reporting increases of 16 to 19 per cent over last year were Philadelphia, Cleveland, Boston, Chicago, and St. Louis.

FATHER'S DAY COMMENT

Editor of The Star We have often wondered why there is such an event as Father's day

Has he not always demanded to be seen and heard on any day?

He is the head of the family but there is the neck below that which moves the head

He is called upon to administer the more severe punishment but now there is no woodshed In which to hold that ceremony He can often be kind and a human being He is susceptible to a touch upon the purse

He meets many trying affairs with unruffled demeanor but the one which upsets him is as he expresses it An awful ordeal to become a father

No special praise is due him for his efforts made day by day to win the daily bread This is expected of him

The pioneer father plowed the corn and carried the musket He prided himself on being defender of the home and a provider too

Called upon to godspeed the son upon a hazardous mission his hearty slap upon the back stopped a shaking hand but the expression Take care of yourself boy did not hide the anxious mind

On this day he will accept praise red faced but his egotism will show through Let us hope those praises will be well meant and well earned

FIFTH COLUMNISTS

Editor of the Star Suddenly we are all talking about the Trojan Horse and the Fifth Column Suddenly up and down the American continent and all across Europe governments and private groups are galvanized in to swift action against internal enemies.

We learned in the last war that hysterical national jitters and witch hunts get us nowhere—and frequently victimize innocent people We want to face this menace coolly and quietly to act in the American spirit of reason and common sense

In that spirit we offer a picture of a member of the fifth column By these things you shall know him He says that democracy is decadent outworn doomed that nations must be ruled by brute force because only force is respected today He sneers at our national leaders of all parties and demands a Strong Man who will solve our problems over night He prates of race superiority and the inevitable leadership of a master race He glibly spreads anti Semetic propaganda one day and anti Catholic propaganda the next hoping as President Roosevelt pointed out to create confusion of counsel public indecision political paralysis and eventually a state of panic

He boasts of the harmony that exists under dictatorships forgetting to mention that there is not harmony of a nation of free men—but a nation of serfs He plays on every hidden fear in order to add recruits to his ranks —ranks which pledge allegiance not to the American flag but to a foreign banner

In knowledge there is strength Cohorts of the fifth column may be found anywhere in high places as well as among humble men and women Once recognized and exposed—their power is lost.

Let's keep our eyes open—and let's keep our heads!

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

A Strange Request as Madge's Mind Flits Back to an Eventful Past.

OLGA, exiled queen of Transvania, is usually so regally poised, so imperturbable of mien, that it was a shock to me to see hesitation, amounting almost to confusion in her manner and a shadow in her brilliant eyes as she asked me to spare her a moment.

A thousand if you like, my dear" I said with a purposeful light little laugh Come back into the library We shan't be disturbed there

I put my hand lightly underneath her elbow and we walked together back into the library I closed the door after us, and, a bit ostentatiously slipped the bolt Then I put her into a comfortable armchair and drew another opposite her

We have all the time in the world I told her mendaciously but something about her told me that she needed encouragement and reassurance above everything else

You are so—devilishly—understanding my dear Madge she said unsteadily and then she was silent her eyes downcast and though her facial muscles did not quiver her hands twisted a handkerchief of cruel size and I was sure that misery was mirrored there

But I said a word simply sat motionless waiting until she should have conquered herself after a while I saw her lips move as if she were trying to tell me whatever it was I remained for utterance behind the impassive face

An Embarrassing Moment

Finally she stiffened her body perceptibly—characteristically so that she did not slump in her chair—but had sat erect while she was fighting with herself—and raising her eyes looked bravely at me

I thought I never could bring myself to ask of you the boon I seek Madge she said steadily but the alternative is unthinkable I cannot come to Philip with guilt

Her voice faltered and with the irresistible last words gave me I suddenly knew how I could help her and spoke quickly

Forgive me for guessing" I said but would it interest you to know that I have a certain sum of money at my disposal in one way a trust but in another sense my own and especially mine to lend wherever I see fit for any time

I saw something then which I was sure few people had ever seen a deep red flush upon the face of the exiled queen I averted my eyes quickly for I knew how she must hate herself for her momentary departure from the rigid rule of never showing embarrassment in which she had been trained

There was a second of silence In that second my mind ranged over the tragic bit of history which had given me the right to tell Olga of the sum of money just now at my disposal.

A Peek Into the Past

The curtain of the years rolled back and again I was in the sick chamber of Robert Savarin, famous tragedy-haunted artist, the last time that I ever saw him alive

He had been, all unknowing at the time the first romantic school girl love of Lillian's life, and he came back into her life after Fate had sent Dicky and me to the Catskill Mountain resort where Savarin insane for years, had been secretly and tenderly cared for by his sister and her family and had made us instrumental in saving his valuable paintings from international thieves just as he was regaining his sanity From the first renewal of the old acquaintance I had realized that Savarin loved Lillian with the deep absorbing passion a man gives to but one woman in his life

It was the period of Lillian's life when she most needed tenderness for she believed that her husband had deserted her and was also a traitor to his country For a time she made herself believe that she could find happiness with the ideal of her girlhood especially as her small daughter Marion child of her disastrous first marriage loved Savarin dearly and urged her mother to marry him

Olga's voice brought me back to the present with a jerk and then set my memory free again

Will you forgive me if I wait just a little more before I talk to you?" she asked

AUDITOR DISTRIBUTES FORMS FOR BUDGETS

Seeks Reports To Be Used In Computing Tax Rates.

The long process of figuring out how much taxes Marion county residents will have to pay next year got under way yesterday as County Auditor Harry V Mounts prepared to mail out budget forms to all the taxing subdivisions There are 43 different divisions of the county which have separate tax rates

Fiscal officers of each subdivision are required by law to return the budgets filled out, to the auditor by July 20. However Mr Mounts entertains no great hopes of having them all in by that time The city of Marion, usually quite deliberate about sending in its budget, has been reporting its needs in the fall

The budget requests are used in computing how much of a tax rate is needed in the various divisions

In and Around Marion

ing the few of our acquaintance who can spin a yarn out of imagination and tell it so convincingly that the hearer is inclined to accept it for the truth is a wholesale hardware salesman who calls on stores in Marion and vicinity and who makes his home in Marion.

One of his duties is to carry samples of his products along with him to show to dealers, and when the samples are large articles like, for example, lawnmowers, the handles are shortened to just a fraction of their ordinary length for the sake of the salesman's convenience.

One of the neighbors saw him unloading one of the abbreviated lawnmowers from his car the other night and immediately became curious.

"Who would want to buy a mower with such a short handle?" the salesman was asked.

Without a flicker of the eye, the salesman started to spin a fantastic story of a community of midgets located in his territory, and almost convinced his listener that he had received a special order for short-handled lawnmowers from the mythical midgets before the listener suspected the story was only a joke.

Mud Waders

The recent draining of McKinley park lake brought crowds of both youngsters and adults from throughout the neighborhood to see what would be disclosed on the bottom of the shallow lake. The event provided a field day for the children and trouble for some mothers.

The gooey mud was too inviting for barefoot boys to stay out of and before the draining was completed several were wading around trying to catch a few stray fish that hadn't been dipped out.

One boy was especially ambitious, and soon found himself in mud nearly to his hips.

"Hey, buddy—you'd better be careful or you'll be in up to your neck," one bystander yelled.

The boy threw a look of scorn over his shoulder at the heckler and, continuing his wading and fish hunting, answered, "No doubt."

Acute Economy

Marion's economy-minded city council heard the last word in municipal thriftiness the other night. One member suggested that, since summer is upon us and the lightning bugs are coming, street lights requested by certain areas of town should not be installed until fall. Someone suggested it might not be necessary to have any lights at all in the future if the European blackout idea spreads to the United States.

A Few Ifs

Inspired by the beauty and impressiveness of the Harding Memorial at the recent Elks pilgrimage, one man was heard to remark that it would be a fine idea if all the fathers would bring their sons to the tomb and let them view its grandeur and perhaps learn a lesson in patriotism and love of country.

Replied the man's companion: "I'd be glad to bring my son out if I could find him and if he'd let me have my car."

The possibility of having to "brake down" in a hurry apparently does not occur to this motorist as he swings out of line on a wet street to pass a slower moving car near an intersection.

Simple enough was the passing maneuver, but it took too much of the driver's attention. What he did not see in time was the truck coming into his path at the intersection.

Slippery asphalt and rubber make a treacherous combination as the driver of the sedan sets his brakes and goes into a spin, the automobile narrowly escaping a crash with the truck.

Added impetus rolls the sedan against a tree.—Washington-Star Staff Photos, with co-operation of American Automobile Association.

"Don't swing out of line--there are too many unforeseen things that can happen"

Next time you have the urge to swing out of line . . hesitate for just a moment. That moment may save your life or the life of a pedestrian. No person ever figures when he swings out of line to pass a slower moving car that he might have to brake down in a hurry, that he will skid, turn over and cause serious injury, death and untold damage. Think of the possibilities of a headon collision . . Think . . Think . . Think . . Drive Carefully.

This Is the Second of a Series of Messages Devoted to Safety. It Is Hoped That These Messages Will Inspire All to Be More Careful . . . and to Help Prevent Accidents!

500 OHIOANS IN AIR COURSE

Training Programs Get Under Way in Number of State's Colleges.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI June 15—Nearly 500 Ohio youths "take off" in classroom and shop within the next 10 days on the trail of wings which someday may enable them to backstop America's expanding air force

Initial enrollees in a recently-devised air Plattsburg program designed to widen interest in aviation among civilians, the young men, 18 to 26 years old were among 7 000 to 8 000 applicants for the summer's work in the Fifth corps area

Later they may enter military air service if they choose with a practical background of basic knowledge in aerodynamics, meteorology and flight in slow ships of high safety-factor design.

Medical examiners have been busy with preliminary physical checkups. First classroom instruction will start in several among a dozen Ohio schools on Monday in others a week later and continuing into September

Xavier university at Cincinnati which with the University of Dayton will train southwestern Ohio students, reported some difficulty in filling its quota of 45 students. Elsewhere for the most part there was prospect of long waiting lists.

Ohio State university reported 250 acceptances against a quota of 75

Rev J J Benson director of Xavier university's program said only half the school's quota had been filled and that many parents were objecting to their son's enrollment in the belief the trainees would be called up for military service

Father Benson emphasized however that the program was one for civilian training only with no military attachments or demands

A survey of Ohio colleges and universities participating in the civilian program showed

Fenn college at Cleveland with a quota of 30 students had 100 applicants and Case school of applied science Cleveland 130 applicants for 60 places

Akron university and Kent State university at Kent, each with quotas of 60 had respective enrollments of 21 and 30 but expected to fill their allotment

Toledo university was well over its quota of 45 while University of Dayton easily signed up its required 30

French Perform Miracle To Keep Army Fighting

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

It passeth understanding how Allied Generalissimo Weygand was able to keep his weary retreating army on its feet through another night after nine days of ceaseless fighting

Still they battled on this morning in rear-guard actions—terribly outnumbered, and so dogtured—while Weygand sought another line where he could reorganize for further defense

Surely it isn't physical endurance that is keeping these Poilus going It is the spirit of France—the thought of the seals of empire which they carried in their blood-stained kitbags.

The Nazis continued to smash against both wings of the Allied line, and the French this morning said that the invaders had driven twenty miles south of Paris, on either side of the capital.

Thus the danger of envelopment of the Anglo-French forces increased

And the turning movement against the upper end of the Maginot line went on

Grim Outlook For France

It was a grim outlook for the French Let's just say that they are in about as tough a spot as one could imagine but that tomorrow is another day

On the assumption that he has France at the point of capitulation Hitler already is preparing actively for his projected assault on Britain

The crushing of England represents an all-consuming ambition and has been his paramount aim ever since the war began The defeat of France ranked as of secondary importance but it has to be achieved to pave the way for the grand coup

The Nazi chieftain is impelled by two things in his eagerness to get at Britain The first is his desire to destroy the vast political economic influence of this pot-liceman of Europe to make way for German domination The other is said to be a bitter hatred of the English

If Hitler pursues his idea of actually invading England with troops he will be undertaking a feat which at the best would be extremely hazardous However after the way in which he has overrun a large portion of Europe in a few weeks of fighting time there aren't many observers who would want to gamble their lives that he hasn't some chance of success

Much Planning Needed

Such an adventure calls for a great deal of preparation The German position in Flanders and along the channels coast would have to be thoroughly consolidated The channel ports—destroyed during the battle of Flanders—should be rebuilt and got ready for transports

One would think Hitler a logical procedure would be not to attempt an invasion at once but to devote his energy to trying to destroy English industry and shipping by bombing and thus to starve the little island into submission The great majority of Britain's food supplies are imported of course

It is a fair guess that Mussolini enters largely into Hitler's strategy for this attempt to tear apart the British empire One thing which certainly would tend to block any scheme of invasion would be the presence in home waters of the bulk of the British navy Unfortunately for England she is forced to keep a huge fleet in the Mediterranean to take care of Hitler's ally

It will be Mussolini's business to keep that fleet busy

LONDON

prospects of American intervention more than counterbalanced the events of this blackest week in history for Britain and France

British official circles declared the withdrawal of the French from Paris as a military not a political decision and predicted that France would continue to fight Regardless of the outcome however they declared Britain is in the war to a finish

Late war editions of London morning newspapers carried stories and pictures of first contingent of the British expeditionary force found for France The government pledging the utmost aid in her power has dipped into home defense units to strengthen the B E F

Army Still Unbroken

Harold Nicolson parliamentary secretary of the ministry of information told a Leicester political meeting that the main mass of the French army is unbroken

Nicolson asserted that this war will be won on the seas and in the air as soon as unlimited resources of the British empire and of the Americas can be mobilized to turn the scale

He predicted that Hitler would be unable to compete with these resources and would turn and twist in the hope of inducing this country and her Allies to make peace

The Daily Mail declared

Complacency has nearly ruined us Men who have proved their inefficiency must be sacked New men are wanted with absolute powers not men who minds are still thinking of the last war but men who can match with cunning the cunning of the Germans "We must face the fact that genius directs the German war machine . . .

STARS OF "TYPHOON" ON PALACE BILL

"Typhoon" at Palace For 3 Days Starting Sunday

Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston Starred in East Indies Drama Filmed in Color.

Teamed for the first time in films lovely Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston supply the romance in Typhoon which will be featured on the Palace theater screen tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday.

Filmed in technicolor Typhoon has for its main setting a small, colorful island in the Dutch East Indies pearling grounds. The picture takes it title from the seasonal storms that lash these islands and one of these provides a climax for the picture.

The picture opens as a sailing ship founders and Dorothy as a 10-year old girl and the sole survivor is cast ashore on the uninhabited island. Years elapse and the scene shifts to a nearby island where Robert Preston, discharged from the navy is a derelict befriended only by his old pal Lynne Overman. The two men have an old submarine in which they hunt pearls but when they quarrel with a native chief they are forced to flee. By chance they decide to settle on Dorothy's island.

Typhoon Sweeps Island

A sudden interruption in the love story that follows is provided by the pursuing chief who discovers Preston's new hideaway and comes shoreward. The chief fires the island and then the typhoon suddenly come. Rounding out the bill will be a new "March Of Time" release a short on training dogs and a Popeye cartoon.

On Wednesday the Palace will feature Forty Little Mothers a comedy starring Eddie Cantor and Rita Johnson. The story centers around a timid professor (played by Cantor) who inherits a baby and a lot of trouble.

Laurel Hardy Comedy

A Chump At Oxford the new comedy feature starring Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy has been booked for Thursday and Friday.

When the picture opens Laurel and Hardy are American street cleaners. Inadvertently, they capture a bank robber and when the president of the bank offers to reward them for their bravery they ask to be sent to the austere halls of learning at Oxford for they had skipped education during their misspent youth. Naturally when they arrive at Oxford they become the immediate target of the other boys who stop at nothing in their fun and pranks.

Needless to say the Americans disrupt the decorum dignity and lofty educational standards of the university and leave whole campus turned topsy-turvy.

Col. Ayers Urges Immediate Orders for War Supplies

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND June 15—Col Leonard P. Ayres declared today we should at once place orders for the prompt production of the chief items of munitions that are essential in rearmament."

We do not need to wait until we can decide how large an army we intend to have later on or just how its divisions are to be organized and armed the Cleveland economist statistician said in his monthly business survey for Cleveland Trust Co.

"Productive capacity for making essential munitions is the primary need and our manufacturing industry does not now have those special kinds of capacities in adequate volume.

Ayres suggested airplanes anti-aircraft guns tanks, motorized military vehicles and artillery are the five classes of munitions which are entirely essential in the new warfare.

"The production of each and all of them requires specialized factory equipment and special skills, he continued.

The European war led Ayres to observe that Germany has spent during the past five years in preparation for war nearly twice as much money as England and France combined. Thus he said all her (Germany's) military equipment is brand new and all its elements are coordinated parts of a single huge war machine in which nothing is out of date."

Ayres noted that industrial production started to increase in May mainly due to a sharp advance in output of iron and steel and said recent decline in securities prices have clearly been caused by the desires of investors to secure liquid funds and are not justified by actual or prospective declines in the earning power of corporations.

A State of Opinion

IMPACT of momentous events abroad and at home in the last month has left its mark on public opinion.

Insofar as the effects can be classified while still in a stage of transition, they fall into two groups. Opinion about the war in Europe is one; opinion about the effect of the war in the United States is the other.

There is a rapidly increasing willingness, unchecked so far by isolationist sentiment, to accept the official Allied version of the war; namely, that it is a struggle to uphold a familiar and cherished way of life against the challenge of authoritarianism, as exemplified by the Nazi regime in Germany. The pre-war American tendency to think of the issue between the Allies and Germany as merely a struggle for territorial and commercial prestige has disappeared. The ferocity and ruthlessness of Hitler's drive for dominance have convinced Americans that the spiritual and political repercussions of a Nazi triumph would be even more important than the economic consequences. American belligerence, which has been dormant since the World war, has been stirred by the one thing capable of rousing the national temper—a bullying attitude.

The surging of indignation has been accompanied by the electrifying discovery that the United States, which has taken its strength for granted, actually is poorly prepared to protect its interests in a world placed at the mercy of bullies. It has been realized suddenly—within less than a month—that while the Allies were prepared to fight the war of 1940 with the weapons of 1914 the United States was prepared only to enjoy the peace of 1920. This nation, ironically, had permitted itself to believe in collective security for itself even after events proved the theory had collapsed in Europe. Overnight it became necessary to revise its outlook from one of assured safety to one of imminent danger.

Steps are being taken to face the danger. Meanwhile, other measures have been taken to assist the Allies, on the theory that their resistance has become America's first line of defense. It is popularly understood that the government will be limited in assistance by the policy that nothing will be permitted to interfere with the country's own defense; by the policy that troops will not be sent abroad; by the policy that only measures short of war will be taken. The American public is more inclined than its governing officials, perhaps, to be aware of the danger of being shoved into war. It does not believe the United States is obligated to do anything more than it already is doing to help the Allies; it doubts if the United States effectually can do anything more than already is under way. The Allies must win or lose under existing circumstances, in other words.

There are, naturally, many exceptions to these general opinions. Popular attitudes vary widely in different parts of the country. But to the extent that such things can be determined it may be safely assumed that Americans have made up their minds on two points: Sympathy and aid for the Allies by measures short of war; and determination to do everything possible to increase their own strength so that never again will they feel the sick panic of helplessness in the face of danger.

Ego Tickling

AS LONG as there's going to be a Father's day anyway it might as well be done up brown.

Gifts and little gestures of consideration convey a general idea, but what the victim really needs is hero worship.

Coax him to tell about the time he and the other boys put the cow in the belfry. It won't take much coaxing.

Ask him what position he played on the ball team. Tell him he must have been a handsome dog when he was younger because he certainly is a fine clean-cut example of manhood.

And don't yawn and inch away when he rises to the bait. Remember, it's Father's day.

News Behind the News

Here's Inside Story of How Story of Russian Entry in War Started.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 15 — The rumor that fooled the world—apparently including the New York stock exchange—for twenty-four hours was the one that Russia had entered the war on the side of the Allies. It was not an invention of Nazi fifth columnists in France as has been suggested on the radio from Tours. Nor was it a French diplomatic fabrication to sound out current Russian feelings following the reception there of the new British and French ambassadors.

Certain official authorities have made it their business to run down the source of the story and they have traced it to a French military officer in charge of a small detachment of troops on the battleline outside of Paris. He passed the story to his troops last Monday in order to stir them to greater effort at a time when their morale needed stimulation. He told it in somewhat more elaborate form, claiming also that Turkey had declared war on Italy.

Paul Mallon

The condensed version swept through the French army and populace, and by Tuesday night had reached Washington. Thereafter it appeared Wednesday on the stock exchange in New York although not a word had been printed concerning it in any newspaper at the time.

Superiors of the imaginative officer in the French government appreciated that the backfire of disillusionment following the story could be dangerous, so the French censors Wednesday night passed stories out of Tours attributing it to fifth columnists.

Bold Little Hope

While Stalin is recognized here as being always in the market for the highest bidder, there has been little hope within officialdom that the Allies could raise the price to sufficiently attractive heights.

Hitler has done a slick inside diplomatic job of reconciling Russian and Italian antagonisms in the Balkans for his own purposes. He persuaded Italy to restrain its appetite for Balkan expansion and has played Russia off against Turkey. For his own purpose, he induced Stalin to threaten Turkey with Russian action if Turkey declared war upon Italy as she had contemplated doing. Thus the Berlin fakir not only reconciled as partners two opposite ends of the known idealistic poles but succeeded, momentarily at least, in preventing the British and French from getting the aid of their Turkish ally, and kept the Balkans off his neck.

This juggling required Hitler to keep more balls in the air than any previous diplomatic performer and it has been evident two or more of them are going to bump sometime.

Inside Stuff

Three days after this government started slipping planes to the Allies, no announcement had been made directly or indirectly by any government official, and the war department was still insisting it had no information on the subject.

To a discerning eye it was apparent inside the war department that the army generals had no relish for the business. Up until deliveries actually started, officials there had insisted planes would not be delivered, only obsolete equipment such as old rifles and machine guns.

This is not the first time the commander-in-chief has required the army to change its policy to conform with his wishes.

True Democracy

The way business men of all kinds have been descending upon Washington to offer their cooperation for national defense will furnish a folklore of democratic inspirations when they are fully told.

But even the commerce department bureau handling the hundreds of such offers reached the limit of its defense imagination when a patriotic New York manufacturer came in, announced that he was a producer of brassieres, and asked if there was anything he could do.

His name was taken. There might be.

Today and Tomorrow

Viewpoints Change as Prospects of Fading British Sea Power Loom.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

A FEW days after the Nazi invasion of western Europe Mr. Ernest Lindley explained in a column why he, formerly a convinced isolationist, had come swiftly to the conclusion that "we have ample reason to oppose Hitlerized Germany" by giving assistance to the Allies. "My answer is bluntly," he wrote, "that we have not prepared ourselves against downfall of British sea power."

Walter Lippmann

In making this statement Mr. Lindley, who is 41 years old, went on to say that his generation, the World war generation as he calls it, do not respond to the "moral" judgments of the older men but "only to concepts of national interest." Therefore, as long as the older men were complaining about aggression, lawlessness, faithlessness, oppression, Mr. Lindley was too realistic to be moved. But when he saw that Hitler might destroy or capture the British fleet and obtain possession of its shipyards and its bases, Mr. Lindley understood the danger to this hemisphere, and instantly abandoned the isolationist doctrine which he had held until a few weeks ago.

The question I should like to put to Mr. Lindley, and also to discuss myself, is this: Why did he, and those of his generation who have thought as he does, fail to understand the American national interest until it was so nearly fatally imperilled by the Allied military disaster in Belgium and Flanders? They are, as he has told us, too realistic and too sophisticated to be bamboozled by any idea which is not directly concerned with the physical security and economic well-being of the American people. For 20 years they have specialized in making themselves hard-boiled, bun-combe-proof, unbamboozleable antiseptic to flag-waving, deaf to the bugles, so that they would never be deceived about the real national interest of this country. Yet after this careful education in realism, it was not until Hitler was at the channel ports that Mr. Lindley discovered that we have a national interest in the maintenance of British sea power and that "we have not prepared ourselves against the downfall of British sea power."

Hidden from Truth

Must he not confess, if he means to be candid, that what he thought was cold realism has proved to be a curtain which hid from him the truth, the very truth about our national interest, which he so confidently believed he was specially trained to discern? I am sure he will not wish to confuse the question by saying that he was misled into believing that the Allied defenses would stand better than they have. That is not the point. If, as he now says, it is our national interest that British sea power should not fall, then it was also our national interest two months ago when the Allied defenses were still intact. Yet until those defenses were broken, Lindley did not tell his readers that the American national interest was involved. In other words, as a young realist he saw our national interest, only when it was already very dangerously imperilled. Is it not evident that Mr. Lindley and those who think as he does have been somehow bamboozled while they supposed that they had learned to debunk all things?

What is it that has prevented the young realists from being realistic until it is very nearly too late? It is, I submit, that the post-war generation have been duped by a falsification of American history. They have been miseducated by a swarm of innocent but ignorant historians, by reckless demagogues, and by foreign interests into believing that America entered the other war because of British propaganda, the loans of the bankers, the machinations of President Wilson's advisers, and a drummed up patriotic ecstasy. They have been taught to believe that any one who challenges this explanation of 1917 and insists that America was defending American vital interests is himself a victim or an agent of British propaganda.

False History

Yet the history which Mr. Lindley's generation have been taught is false history. It is not true that America entered the World War because of the British propaganda or the British loans. America entered the World War because Germany's declaration of unlimited submarine warfare threatened to blockade and starve the Allies and to destroy British sea power. I venture to say this categorically and on the basis of direct personal knowledge of what determined President Wilson's decision.

I suggest to Mr. Lindley that in recognizing the American interest in British sea power he is not the victim of British propaganda and of hysterical chatter. He is seeing what Wilson saw twenty-five years ago and what Jefferson and Madison and Monroe saw more than a hundred years ago, long, long before Lord Lothian came to Washington.

Nationalism was once so feeble in the Balkans that the Rumanians thought they were Greeks, mistaking their rulers' nationality for their own.

The entire continent of Africa except for Abyssinia and the Spanish protectorates was involved in the first World war.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Sunday, June 15, 1930.

Alonzo Higgins, 55, city employe, died at his home on Elm avenue.

Grant E. Mouser, Sr., returned from Cincinnati where he attended the annual reunion of his Cincinnati law office class and also the annual commencement exercises.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Sells and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Koons and daughter Jane returned from an eight-day motor trip to Washington and other points in the east.

Miss Dorothy Thibaut, who was to be married in the near future to George Alber of Toledo, was guest of honor at a bridge-luncheon and shower at the home of Mrs. Frank Holtfretter in Toledo.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, June 15, 1920.

Senator Warren G. Harding's time in Washington continued to be taken up with receiving and answering felicitations for his nomination as the Republican presidential candidate. He declined to answer any and all questions regarding his stand on momentous public issues. He said his position on the peace treaty, league of nations, prohibition enforcement and other matters would be set forth in his speech of acceptance of the nomination. He said he probably would remain in Washington until the middle of the following week and that he expected to meet Will H. Hayes, chairman of the Republican national committee, on the following Monday to work out campaign details. Among the first messages of congratulation answered by the senator was one from John Phillip Sousa, famed bandmaster, which read, "Bless your musical soul. May God's harmonies be with you forever." This got a hearty laugh from Mr. Harding, as the reference was to the days when he as a young man used to play "slip horn" in the village band at Caledonia.

D. R. Crissinger, chairman of the meeting of Marion residents held at the Marion Club Monday night to talk over plans for a Harding for President club, announced the executive committee he had been authorized to appoint. The members were Hoke Donithen, James F. Prendergast, J. A. Schroeter, French Crow, Dr. C. E. Sawyer, Josiah Bindley and Mr. Crissinger. A meeting of the committee was called to take immediate action on a program for organization and activities. It was also announced that a publicity headquarters and possibly an executive headquarters for Senator Harding upon his return home would be established in the residence property on Mt. Vernon avenue immediately east of the Harding home. This property was owned by George B. Christian Jr., Senator Harding's secretary. Steps were also taken to procure a suitable uptown headquarters of the citizens' organization.

Work on beautifying the city in preparation for the expected activities of the summer was getting under way and Mayor T. E. Andrews was already considering a suggestion that the old city hall building at Prospect and Church streets be removed. This was located on what is now the city parking lot. City Solicitor George T. Geran was looking up law on the proper method of disposing of the building in order that the method of disposing of the building might be taken up by council at its next meeting.

A Reassuring Word

THE American Legion has a reassuring word for those among our fellow countrymen who during recent days have developed a definite hysteria, which if allowed to go unchecked, might derange the national mind.

The Legion presumes to speak with some degree of authority, because consistently in the past it called the turn and pointed the way of sanity for handling many of the problems now confronting the United States. • • •

In my belief the most menacing factor to the safety of the United States arises from within our borders rather than without. Our house must be set in order. But the neglect of years cannot be corrected in a few short minutes, hours, and days. What must be done we will do—if a determined and united America sets its will to the task.

In the first place, we should face the fact that communazi conspirators seeking to undermine and to destroy our institutions are fanatics. The truth as we know it is not in them. Reasonable treatment has no effects upon them, and but serves to embolden and encourage their efforts.

We have been told that far-reaching suppressive measures against flourishing domestic ideological conspiracies might injure innocent people. In my belief the good of the whole nation compels summary action to be taken by our properly constituted federal, state and local authorities to stamp out in their entirety the activities of these subverters, irrespective of what may happen to their fellow-travelers or innocent bystanders. This is no time for quibbling. We must pull no punches.

IN my public utterances I have stressed the importance of American Legion organizations assisting and working through recognized law enforcement agencies. I see no reason for deviation from that policy at this time. Only rarely when there is complete collapse of recognized law enforcement agencies, such as may happen in times of great disaster, it is our job to do what we can independently.

In recent years many of our Legion posts have prepared disaster relief plans to become effective at the onset of such catastrophes. In other words, the machinery of the Legion support for law and order is already set up with a fair degree of efficiency. And those posts without prepared plans of this kind must form them immediately. Such plans should be integrated with existing authority in every community where there is a Legion post. • • • We should make our regular peacetime home defenses impregnable. The Legion should head up public demand for this to be done.

• • • There is no change in the official position of the American Legion in regard to the neutrality of the United States. The Legion believes in the protection at all hazards of the free peoples of the Western Hemisphere as our primary obligation. While we are ill-equipped to provide even a minimum of protection for the Monroe Doctrine, it is idle to consider the feasibility of intervening in the great conflict across the Atlantic. With what would we intervene? How would we make our potential strength felt, short of two or three years? Fast moving, aggressor nations have no intention of allowing us to select our own time and place for exerting the might of a rearmed America.

THE safety of America transcends any political issue. And such safety should not be subjected to the fear developed through hysteria.

• • • In the twenty-first year of the American Legion's existence, the nation again calls. It is not a call to the armed forces of our country where we once served. Rather is it a call to develop sanity to supercede hysteria; to remove all doubt about the strength of our defenses; to have each of us individually willing to bear the heavy price of defense which must be paid to assure peace for our people. Midsummer madness. No! It's a blue chip game and we must play them close and play them to win.

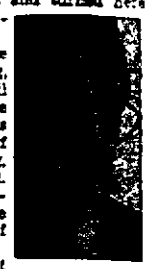
Just Before Post Time Dewey Finds This Column Was Right When It Gave Him 400 Delegates.

By DAMON RUNYON

WE SEE where Thomas E. Dewey says he will go into the Republican convention in Philadelphia with 400 delegates. We thought Mr. Dewey read only the New York Times and the Herald Tribune, but now we suspect him of perusing this column. That was our own estimate several weeks ago.

Maybe Mr. Dewey cancelled his subscriptions to the aforesaid papers and turned here to improve his morale and perhaps his mind, too.



Morgan Beatty

Mr. Dewey remains favorite at 4 to 1 in Wall Street betting, though maybe not in Wall Street sentiment, to corral the Republican nomination. He has come on again after a brief spell, not exactly of slipping, but of ominously standing still. Dewey well wishers were commencing to inquire with some sarcasm: "Whatever became of a fellow named Dewey?"

The stop-Dewey movement reached full boom with production of Wendell Willkie, another New Yorker. For quite awhile Mr. Dewey's presidential aspirations were not taken seriously in some quarters but when it suddenly became apparent he was hotter than a six-pistol, a wild cry arose to head him off, coming chiefly from envious political souls in the east. Their difficulty was they had nothing with which to stop him.

THEN Mr. Willkie's name was brought up. The stop-Dewey lads hailed it with glee. Mr. Willkie's admirers may assert that he was not aimed specifically at Mr. Dewey, but we think he was, though Mr. Willkie himself may not realize it. His name will undoubtedly be placed before the convention and he will get scattering votes that might otherwise go to Mr. Dewey.

However, Mr. Willkie still has not developed sufficient delegate strength to rate him up there with Mr. Dewey, Sen. Taft and Sen. Vandenberg, the leading contenders. Nor even with Frank Gannett, the upstate New York newspaper publisher, now one of the hottest of the long-shot possibilities who will go before the convention.

We do not say Mr. Willkie has absolutely no chance. It could happen that a deadlock might eventually send the nomination into the council chamber of the elder chieftains of the party, such as Herbert Hoover, Alf Landon and Sen. Capper, as a result of Mr. Dewey and the other candidates failing to improve their positions after a number of ballots.

But it would require a violent yanking away from political precedent and tradition for the elder chieftains to do this. They would have to accept Mr. Willkie, a former Democrat, mainly on his business executive background, his personality and his speeches, rather than on the political record, party service and the known vote-getting potentialities usually considered essential in a candidate. Yes, it could happen, all right. Only it never has.

ON THE Democratic side, Franklin D. Roosevelt has almost reached an old-fashioned Man O' War price in the betting. Man O' War was a race horse that sometimes went to the post at 1 to 20. That is, you had to put up $20 to the bookmaker's single clam if you wanted to bet on "Big Red." That is a prohibitive price to most players. They were practically just betting that Man O' War would not fall dead during the race, or get left at the post, as happened to him the only time he ever was defeated.

Mr. Roosevelt is 1 to 10 to be renominated. This is not the shortest price ever laid against a presidential candidate before a convention, because he was shorter than that himself four years ago, but it must be the shortest in history against one who has not formally declared his candidacy. The layers are not anxious to take any more money on him, either. They make him an absolute cinch at Chicago. As who does not?

Within Our Gates

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, at Drake university commencement exercises recently, spoke in part as follows:

WAR IS raging abroad. Its fire and flying embers menace our shores, as they did over 20 years ago. Then, as now, the United States became the jousting ground of espionage agents and saboteurs, each seeking to impede America's program of national defense, through the destruction of industry and the poisoning of public opinion.

In meeting the challenges that confront us, we all must give our best endeavors if democracy and liberty are to survive. Life can be better, if we will unite to make it so and protect our nation from the possible onslaughts of sadistic butchers. Today, the man who will not serve in this task of preparedness has no right to call himself an American.

The greatest threat confronting our nation today lies in the apparent lack of a stout-hearted spirit of preparedness and a high moral courage to face the truth. We need a youthful spirit to insist upon and work for the rebuilding and re-establishing of the strength and sinew of national unity and preparedness, by which we may hope to avoid war and protect ourselves from the enemies within our gates.

The Communist and the Bundsman represent more than a mere political party. They espouse a way of life, a fanatical worship of materialism, destruction, and the blacking out of decency. They stand for the overthrow of democratic institutions, social, governmental and religious, even while their lying leaders in our midst seek to delude us with a mumbo-jumbo of high sounding phrases.

Their "fifth column" methods have permeated into every walk of life. By falsehood and fakery they gnaw at the nation's vitals. Their insidious propaganda in one form or another has even gained an entry into some of our churches and many of our schools. Unless we resist their efforts on a united front, America will rue the day it let down its bars of self-respect—then it may be too late to act.

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

About 35 years ago the nation's press paid glowing tribute to Eliza Daniel Stewart for her humanitarianism and temperance work.

Known as "Mother" Stewart to many, she was born at Piketon, the town founded by her grandfather, Capt. John Guthery, a Revolutionary veteran. She was the daughter of James Daniel, a southerner, and Rebecca Daniel.

Eliza Daniel was orphaned at 12. Thereafter she earned her living by teaching school. In 1848 she married Hiram Stewart, who died a few months later.

Union soldiers, hospitalized in the Civil war, nicknamed her "Mother" Stewart when she endeared herself by administering to them. She assisted in forming the first women's suffrage organization at Springfield in 1869.

Speculation Rife About Vitt's Fate

Front Office Silence Leads Observers to Three Possibilities, Including Dismissal of Tribe's Manager at Players' Demand.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., June 15 — Silence of the Cleveland Indians front office on how it will cope with player demand for Manager Oscar Vitt's ouster bred a lot of speculation among baseball observers today

The concensus That club officials probably could do one of three things—

1 Dismiss the peppery pilot

2 Get rid of the most rebellious players (not regarded as likely because the club would have to employ sleight-of-hand speed to beat the league trading deadline at midnight tonight)

3 Conduct a peace campaign to salve the wounds of both players and pilot keeping the services of all involved

Should Vitt be discharged Coach Luke Sewell longtime Cleveland catcher who is the preference of players probably would be named at least acting manager

Fifth Column"

Observers believed officials investigation of players charges would include a search for possible 'fifth column' activity within the Tribe on the premise one or two persons disgruntled about Vitt's management agitated the others

It was certain the investigation would reach into every department

President Alva Bradley before whom the 12 complaining players took the charges that Vitt ridiculed them and wrecked their morale indicated as much following a round of conferences with club directors Vitt and Vice President C C Slapnicka

Their grievances aired the Indians performed yesterday without a hint of dissension Johnny Allen blanking the Philadelphia Athletics 8 to 0 with two-hit pitching

Vitt told players before the game 'I'm sorry about the unfortunate thing that happened but I've talked the situation over with the big boss (Bradley) and he told me I'm remaining in charge Let's go out and play ball

He even quipped about the players' action possibly unprecedented in major league history

'Well I see we've chased the war off Page One' he commented

In the dugout the men talked and joked

Among the 12 complainants were pitchers Bob Feller Mel Harder and Al Milnar, first baseman Hal Trosky, third baseman Ken Keltner, outfielder Jeff Heath utility infielder Oscar Grimes and catcher Rollie Hemsley, a Vitt favorite

Dobson on Hill

Joe Dobson drew the mound assignment for the Indians today as they sought their second in a row over the Athletics The A's sent George Caster against him

Allen held the Athletics hitless for seven innings yesterday getting his third shutout and pitting the Tribe within a game and a half of the pace-setting Boston Red Sox

His mates backed him up with 14 hits off three Philadelphia pitchers

RUNNING SQUEEZE

By The Associated Press

FEW fans realize that almost every baseball play is ordered by signal You don't hear or see any quarterbacks barking numbers but they are there with signals carefully camouflaged or hidden Once the signal is given it is up to the player to come through with such a sparkling individual exploit as a screaming triple or a daring base steal But in almost every case, the athlete has had his orders

Joe McCarthy of the Yankees gives his signals from the bench and they are relayed to the players through third base coach Art Fletcher Casey Stengel of the Boston Bees operates from the third base coaching box and Bucky Harris of Washington from the first base box

These coaches signal batters whether to take the next pitch, meaning to let it pass without attempting to wallop it to hit or to bunt They also signal base runners when to go down When a batter has been given the hit sign he flashes the hit-and-run signal to the base runner

Catchers signal for whatever type pitches they want the hurler to throw They signal infielders when they plan to try to nab a runner off base Infielders and outfielders are often signaled to move left or right forward or backward

Bucky Harris in the accompanying pictures illustrates some of the signals he uses

Frankie Gustine, Bought for a Song, Plays Merry Tune on His Pirate Bat

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Frankie Gustine who says he is a descendant of Daniel Boone is using a baseball bat—not a rifle—to bang his way to fame

This month lad is 20 and in his fourth year of professional baseball is hitting the ball at a .320 clip and doing a well infielding job for the Pittsburgh Pirates in his first year of major league competition

Frankie seems imbued with some of the spirit and determination of the great hero was fighter and woodsman And his sparkling play is sweet balm to the Pirates' financial department — smarting under the blow of a $150,000 double flop in the persons of Pitcher John Gee and Catcher Ray Mueller

They've both gone back to the minors and Gustine picked up for a song on option from Gadsden of the Southeastern league is one of the year's prize rookies.

You'd never guess it though from Frankie's behavior

Out To Make Good

He's as quiet as a mouse After a hard day's work he slips off to the movies or a game of pool He shuns all bad habits and performs on the diamond with only one

FRANK GUSTINE
No Time for the Girls

thought I'm going to make good

It was an important decision that he made back in Parker High school Chicago four years ago Adept at basketball as well as baseball he was offered a four-year university scholarship He chucked that to sign with Paducah of the Kitty league as a third baseman He's glad that he did

Pilot Frankie Frisch put him on second base this year And is Frisch pleased'

"He's got a great future" says the Bucs chief "Why he's playing the hitters better in his first year than I did in my third

Bad Runner

"He must correct his running though He needs a longer stride instead of that puppy run.

Unlike most ball players Gustine had to be told to eat more—steaks, beef potatoes and vegetables. He lost 12 pounds during the first six weeks of the season

Like most ball players he's gobbling up the biggest steaks he can find now

He's six feet tall weighs 175 He's a good looker with the kind of blue eyes and long eyelashes that girls go for But Frankie has no time for girls, he says

'I'm just out to play ball'

Allen Leads Cleveland to 8-0 Crushing of Athletics; Dodgers Blank Cincinnati, 2-

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The test of a champion is what is sometimes called 'winning when the chips are down.

The Brooklyn Dodgers loaded up with Joe Medwick in left field yesterday and passed their examination magna cum laude shutting out the reigning Cincinnati Reds 2-0 and taking a full game lead in the National league's race Luke Hamlin pitched two-hit ball

Brooklyn yesterday was a much stronger team than before Medwick donned a Dodger monkey suit He got only one hit in four chances, but this was a single with two men on base in the third inning and it drove in one of the two runs. In addition Medwick covered left field like a tarpaulin, making six putouts and inspiring the Dodgers to surpass themselves

The club said Ebbets Field is sold out for today's game, with no-hit Tex Carleton set to battle Bucky Walters and for tomorrow's doubleheader A sell out is approximately 35,000

Red Sox Beat White Sox

While the Reds and Dodgers were trying to straighten out the National league tangle the leaders in the American league took one step forward in unison The Boston Red Sox who are supposed to be weak in pitching stifled the Chicago White Sox 5-1 in a night game with Dennis Galehouse holding Chicago to seven scattered hits

The Cleveland Indians showed they are a dangerous lot whether happy or not by crushing the Philadelphia Athletics 8-0 on the two-hit hurling of Johnny Allen Allen came within one out of a no-hit game losing it on a single by Sam Chapman in the eighth

Hal Newhouser rationed the Washington Senators on five safeties as the Detroit Tigers slammed out a 10-1 victory on 13 hits and the New York Yankees exploded

PICARD AND REVOLTA LEAD AT INVERNESS

Defending Champs Hold Five-Point Edge at Toledo.

By The Associated Press

INVERNESS GOLF CLUB TOLEDO, O., June 15—Complete scrambling of the standings loomed today in the sixth annual $6,500 Inverness four-ball matches, as the first-second, third-fourth, fifth-sixth and seventh-eighth place teams were paired for fourth round play.

Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta led the 16 top-notch professionals through the first three rounds, holding a five-point edge over the field as they went into today's double-header.

The two stars, defending champions and only two-time winners of the best ball classic, had a rating of plus 10, a plus being awarded for each hole finished up on an opponent. The losing team gets a minus for each hole it is down at the finish and all scores are carried over. Each twosome meets each other pair in the four-day, seven round classic.

Lawson Little, national Open king, and Jug McSpaden were second with plus 5 and they were booked to meet the leaders this morning. A three-up win would send Little and McSpaden into the lead for the $1,500 first prize.

Standings of the other twosomes were: Jimmy Demaret and Dick Metz, Plus 4; Sam Snead and Ralph Guldahl, plus 3; Gene Sarazen and Clayton Heafner, minus 2; Ed Dudley and Billy Burke, minus 4; Horton Smith and Jimmy Thompson, minus 7; and Walter Hagen and Byron Nelson, minus 9.

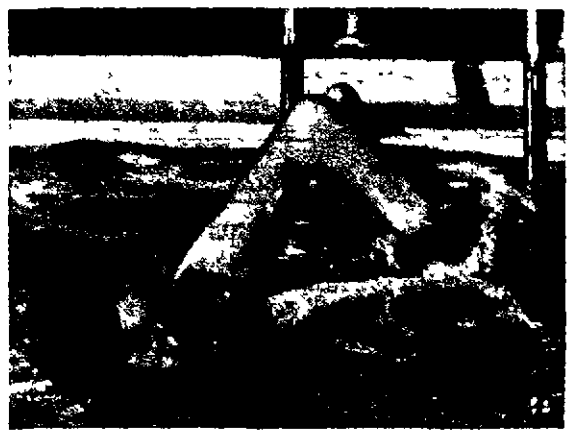
Get In the Swim

By JOHNNY WEISSMULLER
Former World Speed Champion



(Fourth in a Series)

Having mastered the dog paddle start next with whatever stroke appeals to you most such as the sidestroke or the crawl. In the sidestroke lie on either side though the right side is preferable for most people. The arm stroke is an alternate pull with neither hand breaking water. The scissors kick is used the legs drawn up and then kicked out in a scissors movement with the kick made on the downward pull of the upper arm as the under arm is reached forward.

I prefer the crawl and advocate first learning to roll from side to side so as to get the arm out of the water on the overarm stroke. Most beginners do not roll sufficiently and plow straight ahead without getting any traction with the arms on the roll. If you turn the body one arm is naturally partly out of the water.

It is good practice to hook up your toes on the edge of the pool and roll the upper torso and shoulders as you go through the arm stroke.
